The National Dance Institute, a non-profit organization founded in 1976 by the well-known American dancer and choreographer Jacques d'Amboise, presented its annual gala on April 17th in celebration of Mexico. The gala took place at the New York State Theater at Lincoln Center, and was hosted by this year's Honoree, the enduring diva Glenn Close. The gala will be followed by NDI's 2008 Event of the Year in June: Volando á México, which recounts the story of two Mexican-American children residing in New York City who visit Mexico for the first time.
