About Us:

National Dance Institute (NDI) envisions a world in which every child experiences the arts as an essential part of their education. Since its founding in 1976 by legendary ballet dancer Jacques d'Amboise, NDI has been guided by the belief that the arts are critical to a child's social development, hold the power to transform lives, and that background, ability, identity, or zip code should never be a barrier to any child's participation. NDI's mission is to provide children with spirited dance and music classes that spark learning in and through the arts. At NDI, dance and music are the vehicles for connection, self-discovery, and personal and collective growth. The joy, agency, and feeling of accomplishment that students experience with NDI carry over into all aspects of their lives and learning.
